Well, letting her in was fine...

But what is she?

Is this some type of metamorphosis power?

It might be bad to use my right hand before I know what she is.

So who exactly are you?

Where do you think you're going?

Don't tell me there really are magicans?

The fridge and all...
Oh, and Aogami-chan was fortunately unharmed.

But you can't do such naughty things even if it's for that small thing, Kamijo-chan.

What Aogami-chan was doing may have been a problem and no major issue may have occurred...

I'm sorry.

Hey, by the way, can you take her in at your place?

Hm, even if it's only in these impromptu lessons.

Toumaj

It's not a definite no...

A woman who does not clean up... but my apartment building is toeing the line of the safety codes...

and my room is scattered with cigarette butts, beer cans, and losing horse race tickets.

On the verge of collapse

You could tell?

Oh, dear.

You know?

My apartment building.

C'mon, KOMOE-SENSEI leave the jokes to just your appearance.

It was all true, though!!

HA-HA-HA-HA

The End
Afterword

This all started when, one day, it popped into my head that Index was something like a giant rodent. In the end, it became an entire doujinshi.

I of course thought many times about whether it was okay for the illustrator of the actual light novels to make something like this, so I tried to come up with a concept that outdid the heartwarming scene of Index as a small animal. However, I couldn’t come up with anything else. I decided Index was probably the best I was capable of, so I settled for it and took various measures to make this a reality.

And this ends Indexchu. I have not given a single thought to a continuation. But if by some mistake, a continuation does happen, see you then.

Respectfully yours,
